Mission Statement

We have a nice blank spot in the bulletin to put such a thing... if we had one.

Hint, hint pastoral council

I was at a men's conference yesterday (Saturday). Fr. Altman was one of the speakers and I had to support him. It was an enjoyable day with many men from several states gathering together. We had 10 from our own parish attend.

We need these times to gather as men who love God and have dedicated our lives to Him in the fashion as Scriptures says, "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." This is one of the most important aspects of being a man when Scripture says again that the Husband/Father is the head of the house. It is his duty to exercise that authority to lead his family in the Faith. He must be the first witness of obedience to God before he can ask his family to be obedient to himself. This is the beginning of the 4th commandment; to honor father and mother. It begins with the father of the house being obedient to our Father in Heaven. Then the family honoring the father of the house the same as they honor our Father in heaven. Then as God demands that we honor our Mother in heaven, our father of the house must honor the mother of the house the same as he must honor our Mother in Heaven.

When men surrender their love and obedience to God and Mary, they have a chance at being real men. Without it, we get a lot of adolescent cry babies in large bodies. Selfishness, and other vices take over.

Having said that, I return to Fr. Altman. He is a great man. He has certainly honored our Father and Mother in Heaven. He did what he was supposed to do - BE A MAN. Priests are called to be MEN also. We have a family to take care of - our parishioners. The same is true again in that we must lead by example, before we can demand respect from our family.

In Fr. Altman's case, he spoke the truth as God the Father would have him do. Problem - his bishop did not like it and is trying to destroy him. Fr. Altman is standing strong and courageous like a MAN in the face of his opposition. He is not cowering or backing down. He is not caving by watering down the truth. If he did, he could get out of trouble. All he would have to do is bow down before the altar of nice and say he is sorry to the elite, liberal, fascist, socialist modernists. "Oh!, I'm so sorry. How could I have been so wrong. My white clerical privilege must have gotten the better of me. I am so ashamed and I am truly sorry to all those who may have been offended by my self-righteous arrogance. Arrogance, I tell you. To make such a terrible judgment against such good hearted and noble people. I feel as though I have learned from this mistake and I will never dare tell offensive and unwanted truth again.” Yes! If only Fr. Altman would do that!

Of course, he would lose his soul at the same time. He would dishonor our Father in Heaven. Our Holy Mother in Heaven would be ashamed of him for disrespecting her Son who is Truth. He would be sinning against the 4th Commandment. He would be setting a terrible example for his people who rightly look up to him and admire his courageous living of the Faith. He would be destroying his own proper authority. A priest without respect for our Father in Heaven has no claim to respect from his people. He might as well hang up his collar, take his place in the swamp and wait for his death where he will burn in hell.

I know Fr. Altman. I know his type. Gosh, golly gee whiz, I am his type. That is why I love the man. I stand with him as a soldier of Christ in this time of the Church Militant. Comrade in arms. Brothers.

Now, what of his obedience (4th Commandment and promise at ordination) to obedience to his bishop. It is real, and a priest must be obedient to his bishop under the pains of sin. In other words, it is a moral obligation. When a bishop speaks competently within his authority, the priest must obey. This is also true of the wife and children toward the husband/father.

A bishop has no authority to have a priest speak a lie or to withhold a truth that people need to know for their salvation. A bishop is not competent when he speaks error or is abusing his office to promote his personal agenda.

Parish Picnic

So what was the crime of Fr. Altman? He said that you cannot be both Catholic and a Democrat. Now we must not think of any one person we know of who is a democrat. It does not matter to the question. There are democrats who are good (?) People over all. But remember that our goal is not to be good, but to be holy and that cannot be done if we do not live up to the standards of the Faith.

We say you cannot be Catholic and pro abortion; Catholic and a Mason; Catholic and a devil worshiper. There are many things that you cannot be and call yourself a Catholic. These things are directly and diametrically opposed to what it is to be catholic. For those who want to follow the science, it is the same as saying that two objects cannot occupy the same space at the same time.

Here, we are saying that the democratic organization has a platform (list of who they are, what they believe, what they stand for, and what they want to accomplish). That platform is not compatible with being Catholic. It fails on abortion, socialism, human rights, economy, election laws, immigration, gun control, and the list goes on. IT FAILS. Now at the same time we could look at the republican platform. Not something to jump up and down for, but it is tolerable on a lot of the major issues. Things like personal responsibility and equal justice under the law.

I know many priests and laity alike, who would love to sit down with the bishops to talk about their lack of denunciation of the democratic platform. NOTE that I said the platform and not any individual.

We would love to talk about the individuals too and how it is that you think you can allow them to receive Holy Communion. How is it that you think it is right in any way to let them claim to be a faithful Catholic when they murder babies and take away God given human RIGHTS. We ask that you judge them, not as politicians, but as Catholics. That is your right and your duty.

They do not have the right to play the "I'm a politician and so you can't touch me - separation of Church and State. Nana, nana, nana." As soon as they claim the title of Catholic, you can pounce on them.

"That's right, we can pounce on anyone who is Catholic and we choose to pounce on Fr. Altman." Careful... pouncing means correcting and punishing on the right side of justice.

The problem is that many bishops are in bed with the democrats. There is no polite way to say it, as it is so ugly (strike that) evil to know that bishops are controlled by a political party rather than by God. How is that separation of Church and State?

As a church, we have the right like all other religions to correct and punish our members according to our teachings and laws. They do not get to opt out by claiming some sort of perverted twisted sense of diplomatic immunity.

Further, as a church, like any other organization or any other individual citizen, we have a right to make our needs and demands known to the government. 501c3 only excludes us from telling our people who to vote for. We can tell them what they need to be voting for; just laws that apply equally to all.

The bishops, like the priests and like fathers of the house, must first be obedient themselves before they can expect it from those in their charge.

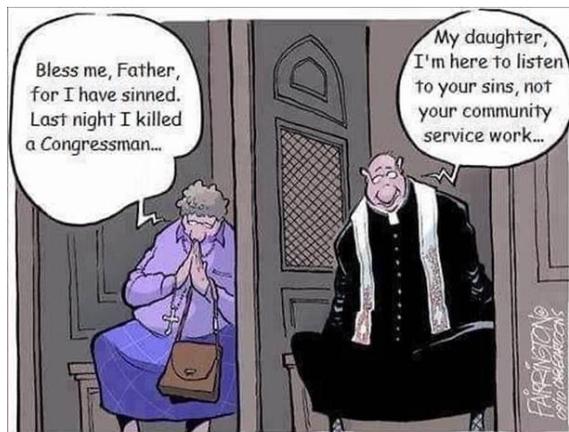

Fr. Altman is a good priest and it is a crime and a sin what is being done to him, to his people and to the Church. If only the pedophiles were treated so poorly. At least that would be justice and a good moral pouncing.

In any case, the many men who were at the Men's Conference with me and I had a great time. We learned much and got to see another good priest.

Battle on, Fr. Altman. Battle on.

God Bless, Fr. Robideau

PS. - As a priest, I am particularly blessed in that my bishop understands that I am talking to a particular grouping of people who want to hear the hard truths and so I am able to get away with more. He probably does not always agree with me and thinks I cross the line at times, but never to offend or to be disobedient but because I believe you need it for salvation. So a special thank you to my bishop for his patience and tolerance of me.
